Devin Bates is a strategic litigator and trusted advisor to his clients. As a trial lawyer, he has experience in complex litigation including business matters, intellectual property disputes, constitutional litigation, and products liability actions. He also represents clients in conflicts involving governmental agencies and in administrative proceedings. Devin handles cases from inception through resolution at trial, appeal, and alternative dispute resolution where appropriate. Devin also represents schools, advising clients to find practical, clear, and comprehensive solutions to difficult challenges. As a former educator, Devin's experience as a teacher and administrator gives him the unique understanding of school operations that enables him to better assist his education clients with their needs and goals.

Prior to joining the firm, Devin served as a law clerk to Chief U.S. District Judge P.K. Holmes, III. Devin has proudly adopted Arkansas as his home, having resided in the state for more than a decade. As an outdoor enthusiast, he enjoys Arkansas' many rivers, trails, and outdoor spaces.

Experience

- Successfully sought enforcement of non-compete agreement in international arbitration stretching across three countries in two continents.
- Represented one of Arkansas' largest school districts as lead counsel in three week federal court trial, ultimately prevailing on three-quarters of the constitutional issues resulting in partial resolution of 38 year old case.
- Represented defendant in highly contested fraud case, ultimately forcing the voluntary dismissal of the client immediately prior to trial.
- Led the expert workup of a seven-figure products liability action for a multinational Fortune 100 manufacturer, significantly undercutting plaintiff's theory of causation and resulting in five-figure settlement.
- Defeated allegations of fraud and mismanagement brought against non-profit organization by state agency in administrative proceeding, resulting in complete dismissal of action.

- Served as lead counsel in a complex, multi-party dispute over rare ancient artifacts, obtaining the dismissal with prejudice of the client on a dispositive motion.
- Represented a national financial and administrative services company in a class action involving alleged constitutional violations resulting in pre-trial dismissal prior to certification of a proposed class.
- Represented large national bank in federal court commercial litigation, successfully securing findings of civil contempt for non-compliant opposing litigants.
- Prevailed in high stakes letter writing campaign against insurance company demanding coverage for client denied coverage due to exclusionary language in contract.
- Served on defense team representing an international energy company after mass tort resulting in injuries and death. Prepared complex briefs related to exclusion of expert witnesses, venue challenges, and critical trial tactics.
